

How Do You Find A Dentist You Love?

Finding a great dentist is a lot like dating. After all, you're putting your oral health in their hands! Ideally, you would like to develop a friendly, long-term relationship.

If you're looking for a new dentist, treat the process like going on a first date. Ask your friends and family what they think. Consider candidates who will meet your needs and those of your family. Does the office have a convenient appointment schedule, and what is their procedure for after-hours emergencies? Do they provide information about insurance, fees, and payment plans up front?

First impressions really do matter. If your date is late, rude and sloppily dressed, you aren't likely to go out with that person again. So when you go in for your first dental appointment, take a look around. Is the office clean and orderly? Is the staff friendly and professional? Does the doctor take the time to find out what is important to you when it comes to your dental care? Do they keep up with current research in their fields in order to provide you with the best care? Don't settle for less than the best.

Above all, trust your gut—just like you would when falling in love! You can trust the doctors and team at New Smiles to respond quickly to your concerns and provide you with a friendly and welcoming environment from the minute you pick up the phone. Call New Smiles to schedule a date today to find a dentist you love!

New Smiles Dental

17680 SW Handley St., Suite 101

Sherwood, OR 97140

503-925-9595

www.newsmiles.com/